Two Classics in the Twentieth Century Greek Series

XENOPHON'S ANABASIS

12mo. Cloth. $1.50

Edited by Charles F. Smith, University of Wisconsin, with the co-operation of F. S. Morrison, Hartford (Conn.) High School, and Campbell Bonner, University of Nashville.

Among the points to which attention may be called the following are cited: The Text, which follows the Teubner, with occasional variations especially in the interest of conservatism; the Notes, which are clear and concise, giving all the help that is really necessary to a comprehension of syntactical difficulties and especially to a clear understanding of the work as history and as literature. The text is broken into paragraphs, which are provided with a running topical analysis. All the best annotated editions have been carefully consulted, besides that of Vollbrecht, but particularly that of Rehdantz. A good map is provided. The Vocabulary is a work of superior merit with several original features.

SELECTIONS FROM HOMER'S ILIAD

12mo. Cloth. $1.60

Edited by Allen R. Benner, Phillips (Andover) Academy.

Contains an Introduction, a Commentary, a Homeric Grammar, and a Vocabulary.

In the Notes proper emphasis is laid on the details of grammar. In the Vocabulary words are dealt with as in a dictionary of large scope. Words that occur but once in Homer are fully defined in footnotes.
